Dear Mrs. Manley:

You recall that during the latter part of May I mentioned to you the contacts I had formed relative to a good job, and the possibility of obtaining a loan from you. At the time I was in need of some $250.00, but now, after working with baseball, I need $150.

This morning I received a letter from the concern trying to ascertain just what disposition I am to make of the job, because as yet I have done nothing. In fact I have until the 14th to let him know something definite. You know the proposition well and I need not say anymore about it. You also know what a job that worth from $3000. to $4000. per year would mean to me. You further know that I cannot do the type of work without a car. Thus after a lapse of six weeks and knowing that you promised to aid me, I would now be very gracious to you if you would do so.

I shall be in Newark Thursday night at which time I hope we can reach an agreement. I shall have the jacket with me.

Many thanks again for what ever you might do.

Sincerely yours,

E. C. Turner.
